The Funds are actively managed by DJE and, where a benchmark index is indicated, without reference to it. The presented charts and tables concerning performance are based on our own calculations according to the gross performance (BVI) method<sup>2</sup> and illustrate past development. Past performance is not indicative for future returns. The BVI method takes into account all costs incurred at the fund level (e.g. management fees), the net performance and the issue fee. Additional individual costs may be incurred at the customer level (e.g. custodian fees, commission and other charges). Model calculation (net): an investor wishes to purchase shares for Euro 1,000. With a maximum issue surcharge of 5.00%, he has to spend a one-off amount of Euro 50.00 when making the purchase. In addition, there may be custodian costs that reduce performance. The custodian costs are decided by your bank's price list and service charges

MONTHLY COMMENTARY

The European stock markets moved in opposite directions in February. While the stock markets in Germany, France, Sweden and Denmark, among others, recorded strong gains, the stock markets in Austria, Norway, Finland and Spain fell. In the eurozone, the Purchasing Managers' Index for services left the recessionary zone. By contrast, its counterpart for the manufacturing industry sank even lower. The eurozone economy is therefore likely to continue to tread water in the first quarter of 2024. In line with this, the German ifo business climate index is also stagnating at a low level; expectations are pessimistic, particularly in the manufacturing sector, and the order situation is declining. Inflation in the eurozone fell further in February to 2.6% compared to the same month in the previous year (January: 2.8%), fuelling hopes of a key interest rate cut in the coming months. The DJE - Europa gained 0.95% in this market environment. The consumer discretionary sector made a strong contribution to performance. Despite the continuing economic headwinds, demand and a willingness to spend are present. Positive results also came from the Industrials sector, supported on the one hand by the continued strength of the US economy and on the other by signs of a possible economic recovery in Europe. The technology sector also posted encouraging corporate results in February, which were better than expected. On the other hand, the property sector in particular had a negative impact on the fund's performance. The still high interest rates weighed on the sector, especially as hopes of an early interest rate cut by the ECB were not realised, and outweighed the effects of supportive economic data. The energy sector was also one of the losers among the sectors in February. Although oil prices have stabilised somewhat, electricity and gas prices are still under pressure. Cautious demand is also acting as a brake. Finally, the telecommunications sector also disappointed. Expenses for raw materials and energy are weighing on companies, which are also switching to new technologies. At individual stock level, the strongest results came from the automotive group Stellantis, the fashion company Hermes and the electronics group Schneider Electric (all three in France). By contrast, the Norwegian energy group Equinor, the German property group Vonovia and the British mining group Anglo American, among others, weighed on the fund's performance. The fund management adjusted the sector allocation in February and significantly increased the weighting of the technology sector. It also increased its exposure to the consumer goods & services, media and financial institutions sectors. In return, it reduced the insurance, energy and industrial sectors, among others. As a result of the adjustments, the fund's equity allocation fell slightly from 99.46% to 98.92%. Liquidity rose accordingly to 1.08%.
